July 10, 2024 (St. Louis, MO)—The Contemporary Art Museum St. Louis (CAM) will present new work by Argentinian-born visual artist Ad Minoliti (they/them), marking their first exhibition in the central midwest. Ad Minoliti: Manifestación pluriversal, will feature a large-scale, site-specific mural on CAM's Project Wall, which includes paintings by the artist and self-portraits made in collaboration with LGBTQIA+ youth in St. Louis. Manifestación pluriversal will be on view at CAM from September 6, 2024–February 9, 2025.

Known for inventive explorations of South American Modernist painting traditions, Minoliti's work draws on the legacy of geometric abstraction in their native country, Argentina, where it was used as a tool to imagine utopian political and social alternatives in the 1940s. Minoliti's work is infused with inclusive, non-binary and feminist perspectives and offers a fresh lens on art history and aesthetics—combining personal abstraction, vibrant colors and playful figuration freely inspired by the codes of Modernism and children's iconography. Minoliti challenges the art world's self-seriousness by advocating for inclusivity, approachability, and more joyous experiences.

For this new mural, Minoliti will be collaborating with CAM's Learning and Engagement department to facilitate workshops with middle- and high school-aged youth affiliated with Proud Art STL, an organization working to increase connectivity between LGBTQIA+ teenagers in St. Louis. These young artists will create imaginative self-portraits which will be integrated into Minoliti's mural—the first time the artist has incorporated work by other artists into their installations. Following the close of the exhibition, these portraits will go home with their creators.

“Ad’s work invites us into a world of possibilities and radical fun, questioning conventions and celebrating diversity and approachability. This exhibition promises a dynamic hybrid of classical Modernism with inclusive narratives,” says Dean Daderko, Ferring Foundation Chief Curator.

In Spanish, the word manifestación can be translated as a rally, protest march, or demonstration. Pluriversal, in Spanish and English, refers to the notion of a pluriverse: a place where multiple realities exist simultaneously. Minoliti's Manifestación pluriversal offers space for celebration and demonstrates their belief that to share in the joy of discovery, everyone should feel welcome.

To mark this exhibition, CAM will produce a zine featuring an interview with the artist by members of CAM's Teen Museum Studies cohort, an essay by Ferring Foundation Chief Curator Dean Daderko, images of Minoliti's artworks, and more.

Ad Minoliti: Manifestación pluriversal is organized for the Contemporary Art Museum St. Louis by Dean Daderko, Ferring Foundation Chief Curator.

About Ad Minoliti

About Proud Art STL

Proud Art STL is an organization that increases connectivity between St. Louis's LGBTQIA+ teenagers. We were founded by a group of people who see the emotional value in a close-knit community, and who have a deep appreciation of art and its ability to bring people together. We believe art is a fantastic way to build community, and want to expand participants' social and artistic bounds through collaborations and various artistic mediums. For more information, visit produartstl.org.

About the Contemporary Art Museum St. Louis

The Contemporary Art Museum St. Louis creates meaningful engagement with the most relevant and innovative art being made today. Founded by civic and cultural leaders in 1980, the Museum transformed from a small gallery into an internationally recognized arts institution, now permanently housed in a flexible, open, and inviting building designed by renowned American architect Brad Cloepfil. CAM's distinct architecture reflects the organization's values and supports a dynamic range of exhibitions, public programs, educational initiatives, and community collaborations. The only museum in the region solely dedicated to contemporary art, CAM is one of the preeminent non-collecting institutions of its kind in the United States. We are a site for discovery, a welcoming space, free and open to all. For more information, visit camstl.org.
